

Psychological First Aid

Training

This seven-hour course provides training and tools for people to support others who are in distress following an event, including disasters.

It covers psychological support principles, including helping you develop strategies to help those around you cope with the impacts of disasters.

It will give you confidence in providing emotional and practical support for yourself, whānau, and friends an emergency.

Sign up at redcross.org.nz